Please contact me through the D2L email tool. To reach my D2L email, use only the email tool inside of D2L. Use my Broward College email only if you are unable to access the course email. My Broward College email is kelder@broward.edu. Note that your D2L email and Broward College email are two separate accounts and separate systems that do not communicate with each other.

Course Information*

This is a 3-credit hour fully online asynchronous course without proctored exams. In this class, you will engage in graded and non-graded activities. See the Course Schedule for more information.

Prerequisites and Corequisites*

This course does not have any required pre-requisites or co-requisites.

Course Description*

This course introduces students to the full range of communication from interpersonal communication and small group communication to public speaking. It is designed to provide students with fundamental training and practical experience for researching, organizing, and delivering speeches in public situations. In addition, it affords students the opportunity to explore fundamental communication concepts and topics and to develop skills to put these principles to work. SPC1017 meets the International/Intercultural competency requirement.

General Course Outcomes*

By the end of this course, students will be able to:

- 1.0 Gain an understanding of the elements involved in the communication process.
- 2.0 Gain an understanding of the internal processes involved in creating and receiving messages.
- 3.0 Gain an understanding of the importance of and problems involved in effective listening.
- 4.0 Gain an understanding of the types of nonverbal communication and its different interpretations in various cultural contexts.
- 5.0 Gain an understanding of the various aspects of verbal communication and how a culture uses language to define itself.

- 6.0 Gain an understanding of and experience in utilizing the factors associated with successful interpersonal relationships.

- 7.0 Understand and apply group processes and leadership formation.

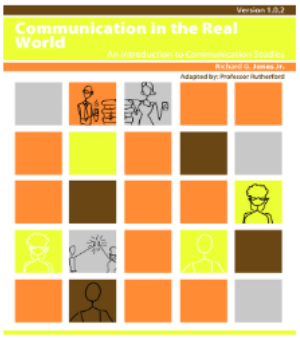
- 8.0 Deliver one or more effective informative speech(es) using research sources.

- 9.0 Deliver one or more effective persuasive speech(es) using research sources.

- 10.0 Gain an understanding of the purposes and techniques used in mass communication.

- 11.0 To provide an understanding of the importance of civic engagement and to provide students with useful tools to become engaged within our global society.

Textbook and Course Materials*



Title: Communication in the Real World: An Introduction to Communication Studies, v. 1.0
Author: Richard G. Jones, Jr.
ISBN 13: 978-1-4533-5202-1

OER Textbook This is a free, open textbook available to you as a BC Online student enrolled in this class. There is nothing for you to purchase; the textbook chapters will be provided to you in D2L.

In addition, this course utilizes the following required software or hardware:

- digital video recording device to record your speeches (e.g., webcam, video camera, flip camera, cell phone, etc.).

Technology Requirements

This course utilizes the following required software or hardware:

In order for you to have the most effective learning environment, it is important that you are using the right equipment. For this course, you will be required to have:

- A reliable Internet connection
- Regular access to a laptop or desktop computer with an updated operating system and web browser. Visit the technical requirements page for a complete list of system and software requirements and the D2L System Check to ensure your browser is properly configured for online learning.
- Microsoft Office 365 is available for download for all Broward College students. Follow the directions to download and access Microsoft 365.
- A webcam and microphone for recording videos.

Student Expectations*

Attendance Verification

You are expected to participate in an academic activity to be considered present in the course. You must complete an academic activity during the first week of the course so that it is done before the attendance verification date. The academic activity is usually the syllabus quiz or a discussion post. Just logging into the course or sending an email to your instructor will not satisfy the attendance requirement. Like your on-campuses courses, if you are reported for non-attendance in an online course and then withdrawn, you are still responsible for paying for the course. If for any reason you cannot complete the attendance verification requirement before the deadline, make certain to drop the course by the official drop/add deadline, or you will still have to pay for the course.

Participation

To succeed in this course, log in and participate multiple times throughout the week (check email, announcements, class discussions, feedback, etc.) so you do not miss critical course information and updates. Additionally, communication with your professor is very important and plays a vital role in your success.

Withdrawal Policy

It is your responsibility to withdraw from this course. If you stop participating and do not withdraw by the deadline, you may receive an F.

Late Work Policy

For this course, unless otherwise noted by the instructor, submitting work late will be permitted only under qualifying circumstances and only with prior notification and supporting documentation (original funeral notice, original doctor's note, etc.). Computer and internet connectivity problems are not valid reasons for late work. It is the student's responsibility to be technologically prepared to take an online course.

Academic Honesty

When you log into D2L, you do so with the understanding and agreement that you will produce your own work, complete class assignments and discussions yourself, and take class exams, tests, or quizzes without the assistance of others. All academic work must be the result of your own thought, research, or self-expression. Academic misconduct includes, but is not limited to, the following:

Types of Academic Dishonesty:

- Sharing Access or Passwords to D2L: Keep your username and password confidential.
- Cheating: Obtaining, attempting to obtain, or aiding another to obtain credit for work by dishonest or deceptive means.
- Plagiarism: Using the words or ideas of the original creator without attribution as if they were your own. Plagiarism ranges from copying someone else's work verbatim and elaborating on or altering someone else's work.
- Self-Plagiarism: Submitting or reusing parts of a previous paper without referencing the source to which it was first submitted. This includes retaking a course and turning in previously submitted papers and data.
- Unacceptable Collaboration: Using answers, solutions, or ideas that are the results of collaboration without citing the fact of the collaboration.
- Falsification of Data: Making up or falsifying information and data. Examples include making up or altering data for an experiment or citing reference to sources you did not actually use.
- Pay/Outsourcing Services: Employing an assignment writing service or having another person, student, or artificial intelligence (AI) program write the paper for you.

- Enabling: Aiding and abetting another student in an act of academic dishonesty. Examples include giving someone a paper to copy and/or allowing someone to access your account.
- Unauthorized of Malicious Interference: Deliberately interfering with the work or activities of another person on purpose to cause the other harm or irreparable damages.
- Inappropriate Use of Course Materials: Distributing materials in this class and on D2L, including the syllabus, exams, slides, handouts, study aids, and presentations that may be protected by copyright and are provided solely for the educational use of students enrolled in this course. You are not permitted to redistribute them for purposes unapproved by the instructor; in particular, you are not permitted to post course materials, quiz or exam questions, or discussions on commercial websites. Unauthorized use of course materials may be considered academic misconduct.

Online courses use tools such as Turnitin and remote proctoring to deter and detect academic dishonesty. In this course, the first time you are found being academically dishonest, you will receive a zero for the assignment. If you are found academically dishonest a second time, you will receive an F in the course. Academic dishonesty may result in further disciplinary action and/or referral to the Dean of Student Services. For more information, refer to the Student Code of Conduct Policy and the Student Code of Conduct section located in the Student Handbook.

Computer Knowledge and Skills

By taking an online course, your computer literacy skills will grow. Some of the skills you will need at the beginning of the course include:

- Working knowledge of how to use multiple web browsers (Chrome, Firefox, Safari, etc.) to navigate the internet and locate information.
- Sending and receiving email using your D2L email (within the online course) and your BC email address. You should only use your instructor's BC email if you cannot access D2L. Note that your D2L email and Broward College email are two separate accounts and separate systems that do not communicate with each other.
- File management skills including downloading and saving files on your computer, uploading files to D2L, and sending email messages with attachments.

Course Activities

Discussions

Remember, discussions are public and everyone in your course can read what you post. Review the D2L discussion tutorial or general support with the discussion tool.

Discussion Expectations:

- There are 10 discussions worth 20 points each.
- Original posts should be completed 3 days before the close of the discussion board.
- Original posts should be a minimum of 300 words.
- Responses to 2 classmate(s) posts should be a minimum of 50 words.
- Responses to classmates' posts must be submitted on a separate date from the original response. This two-day rule will facilitate more of a discussion throughout the week.
- Refer to the discussion rubric for specific grading criteria.

Assignments

Assignments must be submitted by the due dates as specified in your syllabus. The submission of an assignment is your sole responsibility. You should keep an electronic copy of all assignments. Review the D2L assignment tutorial for general support with the assignment tool.

Speech Details

There are three speeches: Introductory, Informative, & Persuasive

Each speech requires an outline, a video recording of the speech, and a reflection paper.

Instructions for Outlines and Reflection Papers:

- Outlines for speeches are to be submitted by the day the speech is due via the Assignment dropbox.
- Outlines will be submitted to the assignment dropbox, which automatically submits the paper to Turnitin.
- Reflection papers are to be submitted within a week of the speech due date via the Assignment dropbox.
- In order to receive a grade for your reflection paper, you must have uploaded your speech video and received a grade. If your speech did not meet the requirements, then you will not receive a grade for the reflection paper.
- Late work will NOT be accepted.

Instructions for Speeches:

- All speeches should be delivered in an extemporaneous manner (see chapter 14). For the persuasive speech, students are required to record their speech in front of a live audience of at least six (6) people.
- You must film your audience in one continuous flow before and after the speech. Do not edit the video.
- Minimum of 4-5 sources must be cited according to MLA or APA format (or receive an F on the written outline and delivered speech). Two out of the four or five sources must be cited verbally. Failure to cite a minimum of two sources verbally will result in a 10% deduction from the speech grade.
- Each speech has a minimum time requirement:
    - Introductory Speech: 2-3 minutes (no live audience is required)
    - Informative Speech: 4-5 minutes
    - Persuasive Speech: 5-7 minutes (live audience of at least 6 people required. The audience can be physically in the room with you or in a recorded Zoom meeting with you.
- Late work will NOT be accepted.
- Speeches may be uploaded to the discussion board within the course or to YouTube. See the directions for uploading to YouTube in the Start here/Syllabus module.
- Students must submit the informative AND persuasive speech to receive a passing grade in this course. If you do not submit both speeches, you will receive an F in the course.

Rules for Speeches

- Speeches must be submitted by the assignment due date. Late work will NOT be accepted.
- Topics should be appropriate for a college-level audience. "How to Make Brownies" is not a good topic. This is information anyone can obtain from the box of a brownie mix or a basic cookbook. Your topics must focus on social justice issues. Your topic must be cleared with your instructor via email one week or earlier before the speech due date.
- All filming must be done in one continuous flow and cannot be stopped. Moreover, the viewer must be able to clearly see your face and posture as well as hear your voice. A room with good lighting is recommended. Please check your filmed speech before uploading it to ensure that the quality is acceptable.
- No assignment associated with the speech (i.e., outline and reflection paper) will be graded if the speech is not uploaded on time.
- No drugs, alcohol, or other substances not appropriate or allowed in university settings should be incorporated in your speeches.

- No swearing OF ANY KIND. General audiences will perceive anything even vaguely inappropriate negatively.
- Your speech must meet the minimum time requirement, or it will not be graded!
- Each speech requires an outline and reflection paper in addition to the video. There are no make-ups.
- Notecards are a must. You may not read from a large sheet of paper, iPad, or similar digital device.
- Persuasive Speech: The research for the persuasive speech is done as a team, but the speech is done individually. Remember, 6 audience members are required.

Quizzes and Tests

Quizzes and tests may be taken only during the availability dates as specified in the Course Schedule. Give yourself plenty of time to complete assessments and pay close attention to the time limits. Make sure you have a reliable Internet connection prior to taking quizzes or tests. Review the D2L quizzes and tests tutorial for general support with quizzes and tests.

Quiz and Test Expectations:

- There are 10 quizzes/tests at 10 points each.
- Quizzes contain 10 multiple choice and true/false questions worth 1 point each.
- You have 1 attempt at each quiz.
- You have 60 minutes to take each quiz.

Communication and Faculty Response

Communication

During the semester, your communications concerning the course should be restricted to the D2L email. As mentioned earlier, do not send class-related emails to the instructor's BC email address. It is recommended that you post class-related questions in the discussion area called the Course Café. Other students have the same questions as you or may even be able to answer your questions.

Netiquette

- In all online communications, it is expected that students will follow the rules of online netiquette, a guideline for polite online behavior. Review some of the general netiquette rules.
- Individuals who violate netiquette rules or engage in disruptive online behaviors, such as flaming (posting disrespectful or hostile comments), posting inappropriate comments, or shouting (posting messages using all capitals), may have their class access privileges revoked and/or they may be referred to the Dean of Student Services. Students who continue to engage in unacceptable online behavior even after being warned, may be permanently denied access to the class and/or may receive an F for the class.
- Don't use email shorthand like ROTFLO (rolling on the floor laughing out loud), BTW (by the way), or text-style writing like R-U thinking, etc. Not everyone knows what those abbreviations mean. If you want to use emoticons (smileys) to convey feelings, stick with the basics [e.g.,happy :-), sad :-(, or wink ;-)]. Others are less well-known and are subject to different interpretations. The idea is to be clear in your communications.
- Use discretion when posting and/or sending emails. Make sure to check spelling, punctuation, grammar, capitalization, and sentence structure.

Faculty Response

Class emails will be answered within 24-36 hours. If you need information related to a test or assignment, plan ahead and submit your questions in advance of the due date. If, for some reason, the class communication tools are unavailable for more than 24 hours, the instructor will communicate with students (if necessary) via their BC email address. Once the semester has ended, and only if necessary, you may contact the faculty member using the instructor's BC email address.

Course Schedule Table

Read and refer to this section regularly. The submission of all work is the sole responsibility of the student. Students should plan their workloads accordingly and not wait until the last minute to meet deadlines. If you are unsure of a due date, contact your instructor for clarification.

Changes to the Syllabus

The instructor reserves the right to make changes to the class syllabus. The syllabus is a guide, and every attempt is made to provide an accurate overview of the class. However, circumstances and events may make it necessary for the instructor to modify the syllabus during the semester. In the event changes become necessary, students will be notified through class email, the discussion board, and/or the announcements tool.

Academic Accommodations and Electronic Content Conversion*

Academic Accommodations: Any student seeking academic accommodation due to a disability must first register with Accessibility Resources by visiting https://www.broward.edu/accessibility/resources.html. If approved, and in accordance with Broward College Policy 6Hx2-5.09, it is the student's responsibility to then deliver their accommodation plan in person or via email to the instructor and discuss accommodation for the class. Accommodation is not retroactive. Students who wait until after completing the course, or an activity, to request accommodation should not expect any grade to be changed, or to be able to retake the course or activity.

Electronic Content Conversion: All students in this class have access to Blackboard Ally, which is a tool that can easily convert electronic text into alternative formats such as MP3 files and readable PDFs. For information on how to utilize this tool, please visit the Blackboard Ally Help Page at https://www.broward.edu/accessibility/ally.html.

Safety, Security, and Emergency Preparedness*

Safety is everyone's responsibility, and it is essential that all members of the Broward College community familiarize themselves with various safety tools, resources, and procedures to remain safe both on and off-campus. You are encouraged to visit the Campus Safety & Security website (https://www.broward.edu/safety/) for a wealth of information and resources as it relates to safety at Broward College. Included on the website is a variety of information, videos, and resources on crime prevention, active shooter preparedness, how to report suspicious activity, hurricane preparedness (https://www.broward.edu/safety/emergency-preparedness.html), services, and how to respond in an emergency. Campus Safety is available 24 hours a day, 7 days a week and can be reached by calling 954-201-HELP (4357). In the event of a school closing, due to weather or other major events that might impact class schedules, the instructor will post an announcement and/or send an email indicating what changes, if any, the event will have on the course schedule and due dates.
